

received by the Marshal, but when she was presented to Madame de Marchale, only a few words were addressed her, in a very frigid tone, and she was unceremoniously directed with a wave of the hand to a seat on a distant sofa; the hostess herself not deigning to notice her any further. For some time she sat entirely alone in a corner of the sofa. Count Orlotoff, the Russian ambassador who noticed the circumstance, with a quiet face said to her by her side and engaged in lively conversation with the neglected guest. She is a brave woman, and the count evaded her gaze, but just out of sight.

A naval officer of her Majesty's ship Royal Adelaide had a most uncomfortable berth at Stonehouse, Eng., on Jan. 3. A police sergeant and two constables saw him open a window on a third floor in the morning, get out on the sill in his night-dress, and then drop out of the window, holding on by his hands. One of the officers endeavored to enter the house, but the door was bolted, and he was compelled to return to the man's flat. He held on for three minutes and then fell, turning over in his descent and coming down head foremost on the sergeant. There was a clash of scabbards, and both men were thrown on the pavement and badly bruised. The naval officer was a widower.

Judge Davis, the newly elected Senator from Illinois is tall and powerfully built. His face is almost a typical Anglo-Saxon one. His features are not finely cut; nor are they expressive or intellectual; but they are harmonious, and there is a look of good humor, common sense, and cordial, self-confident mien in the whole countenance. He wears a narrow frill of gray whiskers around his face and under his chin, setting off his hair, ruddy complexion to a ravishing. He has an air of perfect fearlessness, befitting one never cowed or broken by sickness or defeat. All his movements are said to suggest Saint Paul Church, Chief Justice of New York, as he was in 1872, before sickness touched him. Some interesting anecdotes are connected with Judge Davis's judicial history. A well-to-do farmer was once convicted before him of having counterfeited United States notes in his possession, with the intention of passing them. Before pronouncing sentence Judge Davis asked him if he had arranged his affairs in anticipation of his enforced absence from home. The farmer replied that the conviction was a surprise to him, and nothing was in order, but that he could settle his business in about 10 days. No one was found to go on his bail bond, and the Judge allowed him to depend on his own recognizance. The lawyers laughed at the idea of the farmer being fool enough to come back again, but Judge Davis insisted that he had not "taken the bait." His judgment of human nature was confirmed, for he soon received a telegram from the court which advised him of a review of the procedure confirming $100,000 in State bonds to Senator McDonald, and that in the nature of an armistice, there could be no review. "Well," said the judge, "there may be no precedent, as you say, McDonald, for a review in an ordinary case, but in this case we have a thing that is unique, and it is this that I am going to do."

ROME, Jan. 26.—Audiences at the Vatican were suspended to-day because of the Pope's illness.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 26.—The Rev. Dr. Chapman, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church of this city, has denounced the call of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church of New-York.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Senate will no longer be spoken of as a small body after Judge Davis takes his seat.

Gov. Grover has started back for Oregon to conclude with cronies over their fallen greatness.

Senator Logan's defeat is in one sense an indirect blow at women suffrage, unless Mrs. Logan's services in her husband's behalf have been greatly exaggerated.

Proctor Knott has not lived in vain. His speech in the face of the Conference report has been printed in full by The Louisville Courier-Journal and entitled "great."

Some over-cautious Republicans refuse to be convinced by Democratic arguments in favor of the Electoral bill. One perverse office-holder has come so far to affirm that he would distrust the equity of the proposal even if he could not see that it was engrossed by the House.

Senator Conkling's letters of congratulation are paraded in the Evening Dispatch of The Herald. That journal introduces the following important communication from a leading Republican of New-York: "Accept my congratulations. You have brought the Ship of State out of the troublous sea. Don't rest until she is safe at the dock. Thomas Murphy."

Mr. Hewitt is as hopeful as ever. He wrote to a friend in Cincinnati last week: "The reports you refer to in regard to my utterances are not true. I believe that Tilden and Hendricks are elected, will be so declared, and will be duly inaugurated. You are authorized to say that all report which attribute any weakening to my convictions are false."

The Friend papers announced during the afternoon the miraculous cure of a young man named Christy. This poor fellow had suffered for many years from consumption of lues. He was afflicted with paralysis, he had an ulcer in his left leg, and he was deaf and dumb and half blind. He went down to Lourdes, and no sooner drank of the holy waters of the shrine than he was instantly and completely cured of all his miseries; he could enter more dance, sing, hear, and see as in his tender years. When he returned to America he was a hero, and the product of the volume of the French Army of the North, and during the siege of Paris, was an evidence of the vital importance of a volunteer force. The siege of Paris also brought out some of the best qualities of Frenchmen, and the steady patriotism with which they were inspired. He thought that Germany would have done well not to have taken territory from France.

Senator Christianity summed up his views on the Conference bill in this concise dispatch to The Daily Tribune: "The Presidential bill is not a compromise, but equally fair to both parties. The party which rejects it, without offering something equally fair, will, if the other accepts it, go down. The power of the President of the Senate to decide between conflicting returns cannot be sustained. No such power was ever exercised. It has never had the support of a majority of the Senate."

Ex-Gov. Kellogg had a frank conversation with a reporter of The American as he passed through Nashville on his way to Washington, a day or two ago. He said he thought he would be granted a seat in the Senate, but he did not propose to say about it if he were disappointed. The most he cared for was the independence of his country. He expected to see the Packard government come out ahead in Louisiana, adding: "We have a big fuss down there, but we don't split any more. Everything is quiet there now."

COL. GORDON'S RETURN FROM AFRICA.

IMPORTANT OF HIS WORK—COMMERCE WITH THE LAKE REGION—THE PROBLEM SIMPLIFIED.

After an absence of two years in the interior of Africa, Col. Gordon reached Cairo on his way back to England on the 1st of last December. The task assigned him was the opening of a practicable commercial highway from that city to the Albert and Victoria Lakes. Sir Samuel Baker, who preceded him, had been compelled to fight his way back from the extreme point reached in the desert by the Phoenician pilgrim who went home to Marseilles in the Mameluke Lake, he became the subject of general attention. Unfortunately there was a skeptical doctor in Cairo who, when asked to examine him, put out on the table fixed for the examination the hairy pilgrim was nowhere to be found. This sudden disappearance was about to be attributed to another mafake when he unexpectedly turned up between a brace of camels, and was soon recognized as the same individual who had been the fortunate pilgrim who went home to Marseilles in the Mameluke Lake, he became the subject of general attention.
